

Bank On Seattle-King County is a public and private initiative of the Financial Empowerment Network to connect people without checking and savings accounts to affordable mainstream financial services, including checking, savings, credit, and financial education opportunities. We assist in providing people with alternatives to paying more than they need to for financial services, to help them on a pathway to economic stability and success.

Together in partnership with banks, credit unions, government, and community organizations, local Bank On's in Washington work together to bring affordable mainstream financial services to our communities.

Bank On programs across the United States thrives upon collaborative partnerships among local government, financial institutions, and nonprofits. In addition to connecting unbanked individuals to low-cost bank accounts, Bank On programs involve efforts to raise public awareness, targeted outreach, and expanded access to financial education.
